Professional Development Series

NEXT LEVEL LEADERSHIP

Course Description

This Track III course takes things to the “next level.” Students will deepen their understanding of today’s profession & its challenges, the value of quality organizational leadership, effective communication, and leading police cultures, all while improving professional & personal relationships. Information and skills developed in this course will help the student understand the next level of leadership responsibilities within the supervisory, middle-management, command staff, & executive ranks. That said, officers, deputies, corporals, FTO’s, and detectives have benefitted greatly from the greater understanding of our profession garnered in this course. Students will gain a strong understanding of concepts and skills to successfully manage personalities that exist in organizations, develop work teams, and lead organizational culture while understanding the history and roles of the community and government. Topics will include challenges of police reform, public perception, recruitment, retention, budgets, culture challenges, government relationships, supervisory & command level communication, building organizational trust, and the value of emotional and social intelligence.

Target Audience

All commissioned peace officers, corrections officers, non-commissioned personnel, FTO’s, supervisors, middle managers, command staff, and executive staff of all ranks, tenure, and assignment will benefit from this Front Line Leadership course. This course is for everyone in our profession.

Career Level Certification (32 Hours)

Completion of this course counts towards elective hour requirements for Career Level Certification and annual 24-hour training requirements for Washington State law enforcement and corrections personnel.
