The Carbine Instructor Course is designed to “train the trainer” and is ideal for law enforcement, military, civilians, and experienced agency instructors alike who wish to gain the skill necessary to instruct students in the use of the modern carbine.

The student-instructor will gain the following core instructor skills:

- Confidence and competence in shooting abilities
- Ability to assess the most effective method for teaching a broad range of students of varying skills and backgrounds
- Understanding of physical and mental obstacles to student learning and performance and the teaching methods used to overcome these obstacles within time constraints
- Knowledge of effective communication methods for teaching to limit jargon and to make the keywords used by the instructor memorable and meaningful to the student
- Knowledge of range management / range setup to implement training for specific goals, such as the use of tailored drills to meet the instructor’s agency requirements
- Knowledge of instructing students to use efficient team tactics and movement as well as effective team communication
- Greater ability to answer student questions on the carbine and other gear/accessories that enhance or sustain the carbine

To successfully graduate this course as an instructor, the student-instructor will be required to meet the following criteria:

- pass the instructor shooting qualification test
- pass a written instructor examination
- perform a live-fire instructor demonstration, including a “teach-back” coaching of another student-instructor
